

Enter Brutus and Scicinius.

Brut. All tongues speake of him, and the bleared sights
Are spectacled to see him. Your prattling Nurse
Into a rapture lets her Baby crye,
While she chats him: the Kitchen Malkin pinnes
Her richest Lockram 'bout her recchie necke, Clambring the Walls to eye him:
Stalls, Bulkes, Windows, are smother'd vp,
Leades fill'd, and Ridges hors'd
With variable Complexions; all agreeing
In earnestnesse to see him: seld-showne Flamins Doe presse among the popular Throngs, and puffe
To winne a vulgar station: our veyl'd Dames Commit the Warre of White and Damaske
In their nicely gawded Cheekes, toth' wanton spoyle
Of Phobus burning Kisses: such a poother,
As if that whatsoeuer God, who leades him,
Were flyly crept into his humane powers,
And gaue him gracefull posture.

Scicini. On the suddaine, I warrant him Confull.

Brutus. Then our Office may, during his power, goe leepe.

Scicini. He cannot temp'rately transport his Honors,
From where he should begin, and end, but will Lose those he hath wonne.

Brutus. In that there's comfort.

Scicini. Doubt not,
The Commoners, for whom we stand, but they Vpon their ancient mallice, will forget
With the least cause, these his new Honors,
Which that he will giue them, make I as little question,
As he is proud to doo't.

Brutus. I heard him sweare, Were he to stand for Confull, neuer would he Appare i'th' Market place, nor on him put The Naples Vesture of Humilitie,
Nor shewing (as the manner is) his Wounds Toth' People, begge their stinking Breaths.

Scicini. 'Tis right.

Brutus. It was his word:
Oh he would misse it, rather then carry it,
But by the suite of the Gentry to him,
And the desire of the Nobles.

Scicini. I wish no better, then haue him hold that purpose, and to put it in execution.

Brutus. 'Tis most like he will.

Scicini. It shall be to him then, as our good wills; a sure destruction.

Brutus. So it must fall out
To him, or our Authorities, for an end.
We must suggest the People, in what harred He still hath held them: that to's power he would Haue made them Mules, silenc'd their Pleaders,
And dispropertied their Freedomes; holding them,
In humane Action, and Capacitie,
Of no more Soule, nor fittnesse for the World,
Then Cammels in their Warre, who haue their Prouand Onely for bearing Burthens, and fore blowes
For sinking vnder them.

Scicini. This (as you say) suggested,
At some time, when his soaring Insolence Shall teach the People, which time shall not want,
If he be put vpon't, and that's as easie,
As to set Dogges on Sheepe, will be his fire

To kindle their dry Stubble: and their Blaze Shall darken him for euer.

Enter a Messenger.

Brutus. What's the matter?

Mess. You are sent for to the Capitoll:
'Tis thought, that Martius shall be Confull:
I haue seene the dumbe men throng to see him,
And the blind to heare him speake: Matrons fling Gloues, Vpon him as he pass'd: the Nobles bended
As to Ioues Statue, and the Commons made A Shower, and Thunder, with their Caps, and Showts:
I neuer saw the like.

Brutus. Let's to the Capitoll,
And carry with vs Eares and Eyes for th' time,
But Hearts for the event.

Scicini. Haue with you.

Enter two Officers, to lay Cushions, as it were, in the Capitoll.

1. Off. Come, come, they are almost here: how many stand for Consulships?

2. Off. Three, they say: but 'tis thought of euery one,
Coriolanus will carry it.

1. Off. That's a braue fellow: but hee's vengeance prowd, and loues not the common people.

2. Off. 'Faith, there haue bene many great men that haue flatter'd the people, who ne're loued them; and there be many that they haue loued, they know not wherefore:
so that if they loue they know not why, they haue vpon no better a ground. Therefore, for Coriolanus neyther to care whether they loue, or hate him, manifests the true knowledge he ha's in their disposition, and out of his Noble carelesnesse lets them plainly see't.

1. Off. If he did not care whether he had their loue, or no, hee waued indifferently, 'twixt doing them neyther good, nor harme: but hee seekes their hate with greater deuotion, then they can render it him; and leaues nothing vndone, that may fully discouer him their opposite. Now to seeme to affect the mallice and displeasure of the People, is as bad, as that which he dislikes, to flatter them for their loue.

2. Off. Hee hath deserued worthily of his Countrey, and his assent is not by such easie degrees as those, who haue bene supple and courteous to the People, Bon-netted, without any further deed, to haue them at all into their estimation, and report: but hee hath so planted his Honors in their Eyes, and his actions in their Hearts, that for their Tongues to be silent, and not confesse so much, were a kinde of ingratefull Iniurie: to report otherwise, were a Mallice, that giuing it selfe the Lye, would plucke reprooffe and rebuke from euery Eare that heard it.

1. Off. No more of him, hee's a worthy man: make way, they are coming.

A Sennet. Enter the Patricians, and the Tribunes of the People, Lictors before them: Coriolanus, Menenius, Cominius the Consul, Scicinius and Brutus take their places by themselves: Coriolanus stands.

Menius. Having determin'd of the Volces,
And to send for Titus Lartius: it remains,
As the maine Point of this our after-meeting,

To

To gratifie his Noble seruice; that hath Thus stood for his Countrey. Therefore please you, Most reuerend and graue Elders, to desire
The present Confull, and last Generall,
In our well-found Successes, to report
A little of that worthy Worke, perform'd By Martius Caius Coriolanus: whom We met here, both to thanke, and to remember,
With Honors like himselfe.

1. Sen. Speake, good Cominius:
Leaue nothing out for length, and make vs thinke
Rather our states defectiue for requitall, Then we to stretch it out. Masters a'th' People, We doe request your kindest eares; and after Your louing motion toward the common Body,
To yeeld what passes here.

Scicini. We are conuented vpon a pleasing Treatie, and haue hearts inclinable to honor and aduance the Theame of our Assembly.

Brutus. Which the rather wee shall be blest to doe, if he remember a kinder value of the People, then he hath hereto priz'd them at.

Menius. That's off, that's off: I would you rather had been silent: Please you to heare Cominius speake?

Brutus. Most willingly: but yet my Caution was more pertinent then the rebuke you giue it.

Menius. He loues your People, but tye him not to be their Bed-fellow: Worthie Cominius speake.

Coriolanus rises, and offers to goe away.

Nay, keepe your place.

Senat. Sit Coriolanus: neuer shame to heare
What you haue Nobly done.

Coriol. Your Honors pardon:

I had rather haue my Wounds to heale againe,
Then heare say how I got them.

Brutus. Sir, I hope my words dis-bench'd you not?

Coriol. No Sir: yet oft,
When blowes haue made me stay, I fled from words.
You sooth'd not, therefore hurt not: but your People, I loue them as they weigh-- Menius. Pray now sit downe.

Corio. I had rather haue one scratch my Head i'th' Sun,
When the Alarum were strucke; then idly sit
To heare my Nothings monster'd.

Exit Coriolanus

Menius. Masters of the People,
Your multiplying Spawne, how can he flatter?

That's thousand to one good one, when you now see
He had rather venture all his Limbes for Honor, Then on ones Eares to heare it. Proceed Cominius.

Com. I shall lacke voyce: the deeds of Coriolanus he Should not be vtter'd feebly: it is held,

That Valour is the chiefeft Vertue, and hee
And most dignifies the haue: if it be,

The man I speake of, cannot in the World
Be singly counter-boys'd. At sixteene yeeres,

When Tarquinius made a Head for Rome, he fought Beyond the marke of others: our then Dictator,

Whom with all prayse I point at, saw him fight,
When with his Amazonian Shinnie he droue

The brizled Lippes before him: he bestrid
An o're-prest Roman, and i'th' Confull view

Slew three Opposers: Tarquinius selfe he met,
And strooke him on his Knee: in that dayes feates,

When he might act the Woman in the Scene,
He proud best man i'th' field; and for his meed

Was brow-bound with the Oake. His Pupill age

Was brow-bound with the Oake. His Pupill age

Man-entred thus, he wak'd like a Sea,
And in the brunt of seuentene Battails since,
He lurcht all Swords of the Garland: for this last,
Before, and in Corioles, let me say
I cannot speake him home: he stop't the flyers,
And by his rare example made the Coward Turne terror into sport: as Weeds before
A Vessell vnder sayle, so men obey'd,
And fell below his Stem: his Sword, Deaths stampe,
Where it did marke, it tooke from face to foot:
He was a thing of Blood, whose euery motion
Was tim'd with dying Cryes: alone he entred
The mortall Gate of th' Citie, which he painted With shunlesse destinie: aydelesse came off,
And with a sudden re-inforcement strucke Corioles like a Planet: now all's his,
When by and by the dinne of Warre gan pierce
His readie sence: then straight his doubled spirit Requickned what in flesh was fatigate,
And to the Battaille came he, where he did Runne recking o're the liues of men, as if 'twere
A perpetuall spoyle: and till we call'd Both Field and Citie ours, he neuer stood
To ease his Brest with panting.

Menius. Worthy man.

Senat. He cannot but with measure fit the Honors which we deuisse him.

Com. Our spoyles he kickt at,
And look'd vpon things precious, as they were
The common Muck of the World: he counts lesse
Then Miserie it selfe would giue, rewards his deeds
With doing them, and is content
To spend the time, to end it.

Menius. Hee's right Noble, let him be call'd for.

Senat. Call Coriolanus.

Off. He doth appeare.

Enter Coriolanus.

Menius. The Senate, Coriolanus, are well pleas'd to make thee Confull.

Corio. I doe owe them still my Life, and Seruices.

Menius. It then remains, that you doe speake to the People.

Corio. I doe beseech you,
Let me o're-leape that custome: for I cannot Put on the Gowne, stand naked, and entreat them
For my Wounds sake, to giue their sufferage:

Please you that I may pisse this doing.

Scicini. Sir, the People must haue their Voyces; Neyther will they bare one ior of Ceremonie.

Menius. Put them not too't:
Pray you goe fit you to the Custome,
And take to you, as your Predecessors haue,
Your Honor with your forme.

Corio. It is a part that I shall blush in acting;
And might well be taken from the People.

Brutus. Marke you that.

Corio. To brag vnto them, thus I did, and thus Shew them th'vaking Skarres, which I should hide;

As if I had receiu'd them for the hyre
Of their breath onely.

Menius. Doe not stand vpon't:
We recommend to you Tribunes of the People
Our purpose to them, and to our Noble Confull

Wish we all Ioy, and Honor.

Senat. To
